Council Hears Champions Proposal For Library in Municipal Building

by Al Skolnik

A proposal by councilman David Champion to make available space in the newly-designed municipal building for library facilities received favorable attention by the city council at a special meeting on Thursday, April 7. City manager Charles T. McDonald was instructed to initiate talks with county library officials regarding the feasibility of such a plan.

Champion's proposal calls for the renting of about 3,500 square feet in the basement of the new building to the library on a 10-year lease. The library's present rent-free quarters of 1,000 square feet in the Center School are the most crowded in Prince Georges, according to library officials, and the situation is expected to become worse with the expansion of the town. There is no hope that the library can get additional facilities in the school, since the school will need all the room it can get to accommodate an expanding enrollment.

County Interested

While the ultimate goal is a separate library building for Greenbelt, county library officials have indicated to Champion that they might be interested in renting quarters on a long-term basis as an interim measure. The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission has recommended a new library branch for Greenbelt, preferably by 1962, but county finances do not permit such a venture for several years. In recognition of this situation, the County Library Board has included in its budget a sum for renting space in Greenbelt.

"The lack of available rental sites in Greenbelt," said Champion, "has caused concern among residents that Greenbelt may lose its library and be forced to rely upon a bookmobile. Hence, my proposal for utilizing space in the municipal building."

Add a Floor

To make up for the space rented to the library, Champion proposed the addition of a second story to the new municipal building, estimated to cost $30,000-$40,000. According to his plan, the addition would be financed through the issuance of bonds, callable at the end of ten years, which would require the payment of interest only during this period.

"The rental income from the library," Champion declared, "would be used to meet the interest payments, so that the tax rate would not be affected for ten years."

At the end of the 10-year period, when the library vacates its quarters, the city will have available three floors of space. "Everyone agrees," said Champion, "that if Greenbelt expands as we expect it to, we will need an extra floor in ten years. In fact, the architect's present plans were drawn up in anticipation of a second-story addition at a future date."

"My proposal will give us that extra floor at today's construction costs and with no expense to the taxpayer for ten years. In addition, we will get an extra floor without tearing apart an already constructed building at some future date. This means some additional savings in costs and also assurance that the exterior of the building will retain a uniform appearance."

Advantages for All

Champion saw advantages for all parties concerned. The community would be assured of ample library facilities for the next ten years, the county library board would have a breathing period in which it could plan and construct a permanent library building, and the city would get a municipal building sufficient to meet its needs for decades to come.

The council was interested in Champion's presentation, but wanted more facts concerning the county's reaction to it. Mayor Alan Kistler warned that many "imponderables" were involved, such as the county's willingness or capability to enter a ten-year lease, the likelihood of constructing a second-floor addition for the sum mentioned, and the feasibility of securing financing for the addition along the lines suggested.

COUNCIL RECESS

Because of the Easter holidays, there will be no budget meetings until the latter part of next week, at which time the city council will start voting up or down the various expenditure items.

A native of Salisbury, Md., Smith moved to Greenbelt six years ago. He is married and has a ten-year-old daughter, Sandra Lynn. A graduate of the University of Maryland in 1959, Smith is associated with Oscar Duley, a law firm in Upper Marlboro.

Fund Drive Supported By North End School

A contribution of $5 to the News Review fund-raising drive was received this week from Mrs. Maxine Grimm, principal, on behalf of the North End School. In presenting the donation, she wrote: "We hope this small contribution will help, along with many other (we hope), to bolster the paper's financial structure."

"We enjoy reading the News Review and would hate to think of its having to be discontinued because of lack of funds."

Educational Society Gives Award to Harman

Emory A. Harman, 23-B Ridge, received an outstanding award at the recent State Wide Maryland Education Conference held at the University of Maryland on Saturday, April 9.

Franklin Padgett, president of the local Phi Delta Kappa Chapter - a national professional fraternity for men in education and one of the sponsors of the conference - presented the award to Harman. Padgett called it a certificate of merit and presented it in recognition of Harman's outstanding service and initiative displayed as chairman of the first Maryland education conference in 1956.

Over 250 teachers, administrators, and interested lay persons attended this 5th annual conference sponsored by Beta Epsilon chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, Maryland Congress of parents and teachers and the Maryland State Teachers Association plus a host of cooperative affiliates.

Girl Scouting News

Girl Scouts of Region II have been invited to attend the Silver Anniversary Tea being held May 1 at Prince Georges Plaza. Many troops are now making plans to entertain with skits and songs. Girls of Greenbelt Troop 416 are planning a drill and a choral number.

The Council has notified the women of Greenbelt that a Basic Leadership class can be arranged in Greenbelt if twelve or more women are interested.

A short while back, a woman from Greenbelt, called the Scout office and offered her services as a Leader. The memo with her name on it has been misplaced at Headquarters and she is being requested to call again.

Anyone having newsworthy stories concerning the activities of her troop is asked to notify Mrs. Rita Fisher, Publicity Chairman for the Greenbelt area, at GR. 4-6787.

News Review Fund Drive Collects Over $900 in First Week of Canvass

First returns from the Greenbelt News Review fund-raising campaign are extremely encouraging reported Mrs. Elaine Skolnik, chairman of the 1960 drive. With about half the areas yet to be heard from, over $900 was collected in contributions during the first week. Last year the total yield from the drive was about $1,500.

"It is very gratifying to the staff," said Mrs. Skolnik, "to know that the paper has built up in the community such a large reservoir of good will which, in time of need, could be and was readily transferable into expressions and actions of support."

The News Review drive was launched in order to bolster the paper's financial structure. It is anticipated that advertising revenues will run short of publication costs by $750-1,000 for the coming year.

Other Results

"The drive, besides producing some very necessary funds, has also had some other desirable results," stated Mrs. Skolnik. "For example, we were able to learn what courts were having difficulty in receiving their Thursday night papers. We have been concerned about this problem. Our aim is to cover every household in Greenbelt every Thursday night and we want to know when the papers are not getting delivered."

Mrs. Skolnik noted that the drive has also resulted in receiving many comments as to the content of the paper. "We are very glad of this opportunity to feel the pulse of our readers as to what news or feature items they would like to see in the paper," she said. "While we will not be able to please everyone, we shall certainly take into consideration all requests."

"Perhaps," she added, "we can get those who are interested in certain type of news to volunteer their services as a reporter."

Police News Review

An eight-year-old girl was bitten on the face by a dog on Sunday, police reported. The child was taken to Washington Sanitarium and may require plastic surgery. The dog had received rabies shots and was not considered rabid.

An abandoned car was found in Greenbelt last week. There were no tags on the car although last years plates were found inside the automobile. The owner was registered as living in Baltimore but was found to have moved from there a year ago. A further check is being made. Police Chief Williams reports four stolen cars have been recovered this year for other jurisdictions.

A check is still being made for persons with out-of-state license plates. By law, a person who has resided in this state for 30 days is required to obtain Maryland plates. Temporary residents, who live in Maryland for more than 90 accrued days, are also subject to this ruling. Excepted are service personnel, students who are not working and persons driving company cars (if the company is out-of-state.)

With the spring weather upon us, there has been an increase of lost and found children reported. A lost child is one who is reported lost or missing by the parents. A found child is one who is found before being reported as missing. Two such instances happened last week. One child, eighteen months old, was grabbed, just in time, from the path of an auto which was backing out of a parking space at the Center. Another child was found playing under a truck.

North End Drill Team In Blossom Parade

By Barbara Skolnik

A double-decker bus in front of North End School last Saturday meant that the boys and girls of the Drill Teams were going some place special. They were going to the Cherry Blossom Parade. Last year the drill teams could not go because of bad weather.

Along with their director, Joe O'Loughlin, the teams marched down New York Avenue. The girls did their flag routine, while the boys performed with their rifles.

The teams returned home around 11:30 p.m., tired and cold, but terribly pleased that their unit was seen on TV.

The team, sponsored by the Greenbelt Bowling Center, is still having tryouts, and the next one will be Saturday, April 16, at 1 p.m. Coach Bill Moore seems to be well satisfied with the team's showing thus far. The first home game will be on May 1.

Basic Budget Decisions

This is an editorial on Greenbelt's city budget.

For most people, this is a boring subject. We would like to liven up the subject by telling some spicy stories or anecdotes, but we don't think they would be appropriate for a family newspaper. However, we hope our readers will bear with us, anyway.

If you think the budget is boring, consider the plight of our city councilmen who have already devoted six full evenings wrestling with the figures.

Because of this concern for our councilmen, we would like to make the following suggestions which we hope will help to expedite consideration of the budget and to retain interest of those citizens who might be inclined to attend budget hearings.

Suggestions

1. We do not really think that the council has to peruse every single appropriation item. We think that the council has got to assume that the city manager and his staff know their business. In the past, the council has spent many hours wrangling over such relatively unimportant items as typewriter ribbons, paint brushes, and light bulbs.

If the council is really concerned about such small items, we would suggest that committees be organized which can go over such matters with the city manager in his private office without imposing on the public attending the open hearings. We also think it would help if the councilmen did some preliminary study of the budget and only bring up at the meetings those items that look way out of line.

2. We suggest that a schedule of open hearings be planned sufficiently in advance so that ample publicity can be given to them in the News Review. We also put forward for what it is worth the suggestion that each meeting, instead of being devoted to specific departmental budgets, be oriented to the specific basic decisions that face the council.

Basic Issues

For example, the basic decisions involved in this year's budget are:

A. The $6,000 anticipated deficit in waste collection. Is waste collection to be operated on a self-sustaining basis or is it to be subsidized by the city? There is also the problem of how to distribute equitably the charges for waste collection.

B. The $5,700 anticipated deficit in bus service. A bus service is essential to Greenbelt. The problem is how much should the deficit be financed by a rise in bus fares and how much should be subsidized by the city.

C. The use of the $15,070 surplus from last year's operations. The council has tentatively voted to use the surplus to cut the tax rate rather than start a capital improvement program. This issue is still controversial and the public has yet to be heard from. A special night should be assigned to this topic in conjunction with the next item.

D. Capital improvement. If the council decides to use the surplus for tax cuts, then a capital improvement budget should be taken up concurrently with the regular budget and consideration be given to making arrangements for its financing and implementation. Otherwise, the chances are that the capital improvement budget will be lost in the shuffle.

E. Maintenance and rehabilitation of park and playground areas. Is there sufficient money in the budget to really get this program off the ground — for sod, equipment, and manpower? Would it be worthwhile for the council to set up a schedule of projects which the park department will be asked to develop during the coming year?

Decisions on these issues will determine whether the tax rate will be $1.94 or $1.63 for the 1960 tax year. The hundreds of other small items that make up the budget will only influence the tax rate a few pennies either way. We think the council will be doing itself and the public a great service if it concentrates on the big issues.

The Greenbelt Baptist Church will conduct three worship services this coming Sunday, April 17. ## When The SIREN BLOWS

by Rita Fisher

April 5

A fire in a log pile at 58th and Greenbelt Road sent our firemen rushing to the scene at 5:55 p.m. on April 1. The fire was under control and put out by another company by the time our men got there. Kerosene from a flare at a barricade at 12 Court, Hillside, spilled over and ignited the wooden barricade. This is the reason the siren blew three times on Saturday, April 2, at 9:08 a.m.

Our Rescue Squad transported a Greenbelt woman from Prince Georges to George Washington Hospital on April 1. A nine-year old boy was injured that day also. His finger, caught in a car door, was cut at the third joint and possibly broken. He was carried to Prince Georges Hospital.

The women of the Auxiliary are busy making plans for their Bazaar, which will be held in June. Needed are household items for their white elephant table. Anyone having such items can call GR 4-6787 for pick-up.

With the sound of sirens serenading the town this evening (Tuesday) at ten minutes to seven, I thought I'd chase after the men to see if there might be a story. By the time I drove down to the fire house, got the location, and arrived near the scene, the equipment had left the location of the call. I went back to the firehouse and found out the reason for the call. It was a matter of grease catching fire on a stove. Not much of a story, it's true, but as one of the men commented, "No news is a good sign of fire prevention." Amen to that.

Rescue Squad Chief George Clindest asked me to let the people know that the Ambulance Club Drive is not over yet. Due to the bad spell of weather we had last month, the task of covering the city has not been completed.

Band Practice Cancelled

Practice for the Greenbelt Youth Band and the Woodwind and Brass Society regularly scheduled for Monday evening will not be held this Monday, April 18.

Mrs. Greenbelt at Home

By Vivian Greenbaum

Today I'm going to talk about money. Or rather the lack of it. More specifically, I'm going to talk about finding yourself on the morning of pay-day with no funds in the house and a bare freezer and pantry shelf.

I find myself in this situation about every two weeks, and I am a veteran at handling it. The first thing to do is to make a survey of the refrigerator. Almost any refrigerator will yield surprising contents, long forgotten. It is advisable to inspect each dish as you remove it and chuck out anything whose appearance or smell you can not recognize. Next, line up all the dishes on the counter, and here is where your creative instincts come into play. A great deal of my culinary reputation has been achieved by judiciously combining dabs of leftovers. Have you ever tried chili mixed with chicken-a-la-king? It is an acquired taste. One of the things I have discovered is that a little chopped herring added to any dish lifts it from the mundane right into gourmet fare.

Let us suppose, though, that the refrigerator on some days has nothing in it. It is too early in the game to despair. Lift all the sofa and chair cushions and hunt for loose change. Collect all bottles to return for the deposit money. If you are really unscrupulous, you might try shaking a quarter or two out of the baby's bank. But let me caution you, if you have a child like mine, never, never borrow money from her. Not that she has not got it to lend. I think new statistics on this subject would show that the wealth of this country is no longer controlled by women but by children. The reason I don't borrow from Rachelle is because I find her interest rates of 150% ruinous. She can't figure interest yet, but she can figure a quarter back for every dime borrowed. I'm sure that if Rachelle could get over her distrust of banks, she could one day make the financial world forget Hetty Green.

Another way to get through this awkward period is to find a friend whose husband has a different pay-day from yours. You can borrow from her, and then on your husband's pay-day you pay it back, at the same time lending her something to tide her over her rough spot. A friend and I had such an arrangement for years, and every pay-day ten dollars would change hands. Five dollars was for repayment of the debt, and five dollars was a new loan. These transactions were finally discontinued, but I do not know to this day whether we broke even or if one of us came out ahead.

All of the above methods are helpful, and some of them might work for you. If they don't, perhaps you'd better do what I do now, which is to have your husband take the family out to dinner on pay-day.

"Mary Stuart" Returns To National on April 25

Mail orders are now being re- ceived at the National Theatre for the return appearance of Schiller's romantic drama "Mary Stuart" in Washington, D. C.

So many people were disappointed in not being able to get tickets for "Mary Stuart" when it appeared here in January, and because of public demand, the National Thea- tre is bringing it back for a return engagement of two weeks, opening on April 25.

One of the great theatre master- pieces of all time, "Mary Stuart" stars the famous actress Eva Le Gallienne as Queen Elizabeth I of England, and the lovely stage and screen star Signe Hasso as Mary, Queen of the Scots.

"Mary Stuart" was such a success in its appearance in New York that the engagement had to be extend- ed twice, and now Washington will have the same distinction. S. Hurok is presenting the National Phoenix Theatre production which was di- rected by the distinguished English director, Tyrone Guthrie. The set- tings and lighting are by Donald Oenslager, and the magnificent costumes were designed by Alvin Colt.

The cast of "Mary Stuart" is head- ed by Staats Cotsworth as Lord Burleigh, Patrick Waddington from the London stage as Dudley, Earl of Leicester.
